Schell-Osage

CONSERVATION AREA

MISSOURI DEPARTMENT OF CONSERVATION

Schell-Osage Conservation Area

The Schell-Osage Conservation Area and the Osage River, which forms much of the area's north boundary, derive their names from the Osage Indians which once inhabited the area. Opened to the public in 1964, this highly diverse area is comprised of large parcels of open marsh, and both bottomland and upland forest. Over 40 acres of remnant native prairie which have been augmented with another 340 acres of restored native grasslands. Over 1,400 acres of seasonally flooded wetlands provide habitat for a wide variety of waterfowl, shore birds, wading birds and other wetland-dependent wildlife and makes this area a popular destination for both hunters and birders. There are numerous features and facilities throughout the area including two primitive campgrounds, a grass hiking trail, two disabled user waterfowl blinds, two large fishing lakes, and several small ponds.

This conservation area was acquired in part through the Pittman-Robertson Wildlife Restoration Act administered by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Schell-Osage Conservation Area is in Vernon and St. Clair counties. From El Dorado Springs, take Highway 54 west 6 miles, then Route AA north 12 miles, then Route RA east 1.50 miles (last 0.50 mile is gravel), then 2950 Road south 0.25 mile to the area headquarters.
